

Our policy on equal pay and the gender pay gap

Here at Halo we're passionate about fairness, equality and inclusion and we welcome the new law asking employers to publish their gender pay gap results. The first thing you need to know is....

In Halo, men and women are ALWAYS paid the same rate of pay when in the same job.

What is the gender pay gap?

It shows the difference in the average pay between all men and women.

Gender make-up at Halo

Our workforce is made up of broadly the same proportion of females as our customer base.

How do we compare?

The sports and leisure sector average gender pay gap is 0% compared to the overall gender pay gap in Britain of 17.9%*

(* Office for national statistics)

What does our gender pay gap look like?

Total Halo workforce including casual staff

The average female hourly pay rate is 8% higher than men.

Why the gender pay gap?

Many casual jobs are instructor based and attract a higher hourly rate. These flexible working arrangements attract more women than men.

Contracted workforce (excluding casual staff)

The average male hourly pay rate is 2% higher than the female rate.

Why the gender pay gap?

Fewer women than men currently progress into management and leadership roles.

Gender balance matters...

We will continue to reduce the gender pay gap:

1. Review contract types and role structure so they attract and retain more male workers.
2. Continue to create opportunities for males to become coaches and instructors.

Where does that leave us now?

Although a small gap does exist in terms of workforce numbers and pay, we're not where we want to be and are working towards a 50:50 gender balance and absolute pay parity by 2020. We are totally committed to fair treatment and reward of all staff irrespective of gender.

Scott Rolfe, Halo CEO / October 2019